Regarding Covid-19:

We are striving to provide our beloved clients with a fun, meaningful mini session experience this year, and our greatest priority is the health and safety of all of our attendees and staff. We have made every possible effort to minimize the potential risk of illness in these extremely challenging times. In this vein, please note that the books, blankets, stuffed animals, red wagon, candy canes, and other materials used to engage our youngest clients last year will NOT be made available by Alyssa Lydia Images. We encourage you to consider bringing your own blankets, favorite holiday-themed family stories, or any other objects that you would like included in your gallery- we will be thrilled to incorporate these special traditions into your session!!

Please also note that we will ask you and your loved ones over the age of four to wear masks as you are walking from the parking lot to your session and location and back. We will have disposable masks available on site should you not have access to your own at the time of your session. Our team will be wearing masks throughout the day (but know that we are smiling underneath!!), and will have hand sanitizer on site for clients and staff. We will stay at least six feet away from clients at all times.

Finally, we are fortunate to have full access to the vast property the Belmont Christmas Tree farm has to offer. My assistant and I will be scouting the property before our session day to strategize the best way to take advantage of the space available and minimize traffic through one specific area, while still providing the very best natural light and scenic backdrop. The artistic floral setups are not designed for physical contact with the exception of our rustic bench, which will be disinfected between uses.

If you are interested in attending mini sessions but are uncomfortable due to concerns of exposure to Covid-19, please contact me- we are here to help and your safety and comfort is our number one concern!
